

COLOR QUARTETS

Game Rules

Play With...

3 to 6 players. Age: 5 and up.

What's in the Box?

32 Cards, forming 8 quartets.

The Basics:

Quartets requires a good memory, a bit of strategy and some luck. Any move played provides important information to the rest of the players, and the player who knows how to utilize that information to his advantage, gets the lead. "Color Quartets" does not require reading, it uses simple and clear drawings, and is particularly suitable for a first acquaintance with the wonderful experience of quartets games - one of the most successful classic social games.

Objectives

To collect as many series a possible. 4 cards of the same color form a series.

Ready, Steady, Go...

Shuffle the cards thoroughly, and deal 4 cards to each player, the rest are the Bank, and placed face down in the center of the table.

The youngest player goes first. He chooses any color he has in his hand, and tries to complete the series. He turns to one of the players and asks if he has cards in the desired color. Example: "Jake, do you have any red cards?" If he has any cards in the requested color, he must give them to the asking player. If he has no cards in the requested color, he asks the asking player to go to the bank and draw one card. If the card drawn from the bank has the color he just asked for, he shows it to all the participants, and he gets another turn. If the card has any other color, the turn goes to the next player.

Who is the Next Player?

When the asking player wins an extra turn, he may ask the same player again or any other player. As soon as he receives a "No" for an answer, the turn goes to the next player.

What to do with a Complete Series?

A player completing a series places it face up on the table.

And Who Wins?

The game is over when all series are completed and placed on the table, and the winner is the player who has completed the largest number of quartets.
